A sea of mirrors concentrate light on the solar power tower.

Mirrors reflect desert sun rays at largest solar-powered station

By RICHARD PERAZA
Staff Writer

The sun is doing more than baking sand in the desert community of Daggett.

That's where United States Department of Energy and Southern California Edison officials are testing Solar I, the world's largest solar-powered electric generating station.

Eager to show off the new 10 megawatt (1 megawatt equals 1 million watts) plant, electric company officials are busing select Southern California officials to the site. A group of about 35 West End city officials recently toured the facility.

It looks like something out of a James Bond movie. Surrounded by miles of empty desert, 1,818 massive mirrors reflect the sun's rays to the top of a 300-foot tower where water is superheated into steam that can drive turbines and generators.

Each morning, as the clouds clear away, the top of that "power tower" lights up like a second sun as the mirrors multiply the sun's energy 300 times and focus it on the boiler at the top. Despite the boiler's black surface, it glows bright white under the reflected sunlight.

The morning air around it glows eerily as the computer-controlled mirrors move their beams of energy toward the boiler and the concentrated light reflects off dust particles. Drawn to the light, insects fly too close to the intense heat and disintegrate with a quick flash.

It takes about two hours to get the plant working each day, according to Pat Tong, supervisor of Edison's Solar I Visitor Center in Daggett.

But once operating, all electricity produced is

Hundreds attend redevelopment plan hearing

By NANCY WALLACE
Staff Writer

Residents and businessmen were divided Monday night in their support of the Redevelopment Plan for Project Area No. 1 at a joint hearing of the Upland Community Redevelopment Agency and the City Council at Upland High School.

Hundreds filed into the auditorium to hear the first part of public testimony on the plan, Upland's first attempt at redevelopment. The hearing was continued to June 21, this time at City Hall, when the council will also consider a controversial general plan amendment that brings planning elements into one document.

CRA Executive Director Lee Travers told the audience Upland needs redevelopment because cut-backs in state funding to the city are ever-increasing, because state and federal grants for public works are nearly non-existent, and because the city needs millions of dollars to complete scheduled public improvements such as storm drains.

The city needs redevelopment this year because a delay will cause the agency to lose at least $17 million in tax increment over the 35-year life of the redevelopment plan.

The Upland Citizens for Open Government (COG) focused nearly all their protests on the environmental impact report. They complained the document does not address the full potential impacts of redevelopment and complete build-out of the city on air quality, water quality, toxic substance control and seismic safety.

They demanded specific figures and quantities of pollutants, lacking in the present draft EIR. Redevelopment attorney Jim Markman explained this was impossible; the Redevelopment Plan is a general document, he said, and so no specific impacts can be detailed from it. Each specific redevelopment project will have to have a detailed EIR, and residents can then learn how individual projects will impact the environment.

COG spokespersons also repeatedly complained about the Report on Blighting Conditions. Using words such as "appalling" and "blatant racism," they complained about two lines in the chapter on Social and Economic Maladjustment:

"Ethnic minorities often have lower paying jobs (if they have jobs at all) and therefore have less income to maintain their property. In this overall context, ethnicity becomes a significant factor in locating social and economic maladjustment," page 23 reads.

Council member Dina Hunter assured the residents these lines will be removed from the next draft of the Report on Blighting Conditions.

COG spokespersons also urged delays to allow the agency time to revise the actual Redevelopment Plan. Eleven amendments were listed on one sheet of paper and distributed at the hearing, but the residents said they want to read these in the plan itself before it is approved.

The amendments include the total elimination of eminent domain powers from the agency, a requirement for a public hearing before any structure is demolished or removed, and a provision to make all residential properties exempt from the plan unless the owners wish to participate.

virtually free. No fuels are used to turn the turbines or run equipment.

The plant, Tong said, is rated to produce 10 megawatts of electricity for use in Edison's "grid" power system, plus the 1.8 megawatts of energy required to actually run the plant and its equipment.

When fully operational it will run about eight hours a day in the summer at peak output, then drop down to 7 megawatts for four hours after sundown, thanks to a thermal storage system.

Those times will drop slightly during winter operation, Tong said.

Solar I is the result of a 1974 goal set by the Department of Energy to complete a pilot solar plant by the early 1980s.

The site was chosen for many reasons... lots of sunshine, little rain and acres and acres of cheap land. Solar I sprawls over 130 acres at Edison's Cool Water Generating Station in Daggett, 12 miles southeast of Barstow. About 80 of those acres are covered by the massive 23-foot-by-23-foot mirrors, called heliostats.

The thermal storage system is really nothing more than a huge tank filled with oil and rocks.

After the steam has driven the turbines, it heats oil, which is then pumped into the tank. The oil is recirculated until the massive tank is filled with hot oil and rocks, which are used to heat the water into steam after the sun has gone down.

The DOE, Edison, the California Energy Commission and the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power all participated in the project at a cost of about $142 million. About $120 million of that was supplied by the DOE.

One Edison official confided that without government participation, the utility probably would not have undertaken the expense of building the solar plant.

Tong said that based on the oil that would be consumed to generate the same amount of power, the station might pay for itself in seven years.

But 10 megawatts is only enough electricity to meet the needs of about 6,000 people and based on the return from electricity rates, the utility could never hope to recover the $142 million construction cost within Solar I's expected 30-year lifespan.

"The reason we're so expensive is that we're loaded with test equipment," Tong said. The plant is a first for this nation so extensive computer monitoring equipment has been installed everywhere.

Solar power can be generated economically, though. Tong said the cost could be brought down if the monitoring test equipment were dropped and if more plants were built.

None of the technology used in Solar I is new, she said, but the plant is one-of-a-kind. Practically all the parts had to be custom made.

If utilities and private companies begin building more solar plants, other companies will begin mass producing parts, slashing the costs dramatically.

At least one other company believes a profit can be made from solar power. Acurex Solar Corp. has signed contracts with Edison to build a 12 megawatt plant near Solar I and to sell the power generated to the electric company.

Estimated cost will be $75 million and the design, radically different from Solar I's, will feature 5,300 solar parabolic troughs — banks of long, low, curved mirrors — which will reflect the sun's rays onto pipes running between them.

Water in those pipes will be superheated into steam, which will drive turbines.

The Acurex design also features computer-controlled mirrors but the system won't be as elaborate as Solar I's.

All of the Solar I heliostats automatically move to "track" the sun every 10 seconds, according to Tong, but each can also be independently controlled. They can be stored, face-down, during foul weather and can survive 90 mph winds in that position, she said.

"There's no little old lady with Windex and paper towels," Tong said. Solar I's heliostats can be cleaned with a jet of distilled water, but there are no plans to do that right away.

"We want to see how dirty they get without a loss in efficiency," she said.

Although hundreds of insects are drawn to the glowing boiler atop the power tower and are instantly disintegrated by the 1,500-degree temperatures there, no birds are harmed, according to Tong.

Birds, she said, sense the heat and instinctively steer clear of the tower.

We know where you can find $11.

Look in your furnace. See that little pilot light? Well, if you turn it off for the summer, you'll save about $11.*

If you leave it off longer—into the warm fall months—you'll save even more.

Here's how easy it is:

Open the access panel to the main gas control. You'll find instructions that will tell you how to safely turn off and relight your furnace pilot.

If you're not sure how to safely turn your pilot off and on, call the Gas Company for help.

Remember, gas rates have gone up in the past year. Which means your furnace pilot is burning up more money than ever.

So turn it off this summer. And save a cool $11. Let's work together to save energy.

Steelworkers seek preliminary injunction against Kaiser Steel

By ANDREA ADELSON
Staff Writer

Steelworkers returned to a Los Angeles court Monday to seek a preliminary injunction against Kaiser Steel Corp. after a federal judge denied them a temporary restraining order against the steelmaker late last week.

The United Steelworkers local in Fontana claims Kaiser Steel violated a labor agreement and is seeking a court order to enjoin Kaiser from continuing present working conditions, and to return the "status quo," conditions before May 30 when 400 workers were laid off.

Steelworkers also hope to expedite grievance hearings related to the layoffs, attorney Michael Feinberg said.

Federal district Judge Terry J. Hatter denied the temporary restraining order last Thursday because "our view of the law did not support it," said a law clerk to Hatter.

Kaiser Steel Corp. attorneys did agree Thursday to consolidate into a single arbitration hearing 250 individual grievances resulting from the May 30 furloughs but declined to reinstate previous working conditions.

Judge Hatter "encouraged that very strongly," the clerk said.

"This is an important issue. People's lives are at stake," steelworkers' attorney Feinberg said.

Reductions in crew sizes accompanied the massive layoff, a cost-cutting move by Kaiser Steel. "Work changes are life-threatening," the attorney said. "When you reduce crew sizes and don't cut production, you have a speed up ... and there is a possibility of injuries."

The federal law clerk said it is common for a petitioner to seek an injunction following denial of a restraining order. The plaintiff does not have to demonstrate as great an urgency to obtain an injunction, but the same legal standard would be applied to both requests, the clerk said.

That standard is determining under what narrow exceptions federal courts can intercede in labor disputes as defined under a 1932 federal anti-injunction act.

Steelworkers will argue that a more recent 1977 federal court decision, Amalgamated Transit Union vs. Greyhound Lines, that allows court intervention under certain exceptions, also applies to its dispute with Kaiser Steel.

"We will be presenting similar arguments. And certainly hope for a better result," Feinberg said.

"Their argument," the attorney said of Kaiser, "is that they are saving $200,000 a week in payroll. But the contract says labor costs are not grounds for a change in working conditions."

While the court cannot rule on a contract violation, steelworkers are seeking to reverse working conditions while arbitration proceeds. But the volume of grievances effectively jams the procedure, the attorney said. Without consolidation, steelworkers could wait up to five years for a ruling by a private arbitrator, he said.

Steelworkers will appeal if a second request is also denied, attorneys said.

Former water district director loses election

A former director of the Cucamonga County Water District has lost in his bid to win a seat on another water board in the Big Bear Lake area.

Charles "Ted" Vath, who was defeated in his reelection bid for a seat with the Cucamonga County Water District last November, came in last among three candidates for a seat on the Big Bear Municipal Water District this week.

Vath received 144 votes in his bid for one of five directorships in Big Bear where he has relocated his legal residence.

The two candidates who will face each other in a runoff this November received 188 and 153 votes.

The race in Big Bear was relatively quiet, observers said — especially compared with last November's campaign when Vath found himself at the center of a bitter race.

Observers of the Big Bear race said they did not feel Vath's difficulty in last year's race became an issue in the recent campaign

Four area high school juniors to attend Boys' State program

Four local high school juniors have been selected to attend the Boys' State program from Saturday through June 26 at California State University, Sacramento.

Attending will be Walter Scott of Ontario High School, David George of Chaffey High School, Eddie Oliver III of Upland High School and Matt Loggins of Montclair High School.

They are being co-sponsored for Boys' State this year by the American Legion Post 112 of Ontario, the Montclair Kiwanis Club and the Elks Lodge 1419 of Ontario.

The Boys' State program is an education in practical Americanism. Those attending learn practical civics and all about the democratic form of government and how it works.

The son of Walter and Jerry Scott, the Ontario High School representative is the newly elected Associated Student Body president for the 1982-83 school year. He belongs to the California Scholarship Federation, the Black Student Union and the Boys' Athletic Commission.

Scott is a member of the Letterman's Club and participates in football, basketball, baseball and track.

He plans to attend college after graduating from high school and to major in business administration.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald George of Rancho Cucamonga, the Chaffey High School representative is a three-year member of the Key Club and is immediate past president of that organization.

He has a 3-6 grade point average and plans to attend UCLA after graduating from high school.

The Upland High School representative, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Oliver Jr., moved to Upland in August of last year from La Marque High School. He has been elected ASB president at Upland for the 1982-83 school year, is a member of the Student Council and has lettered in varsity football and wrestling.

Oliver has a trophy for assisting with coaching Upland Pop Warner Football and a plaque for coaching Junior Girls' Powder Puff Football Team. He is a member of the 1100 LB Club.

At his former high school, Oliver was a member of the National Honor Society, won a speech achievement award, was named Mainland Elks Teen of the Month, received the O'Connell Service Award and the Football Triple Threat Award.

He plans to attend law school after graduating from high school and hopes to take an active part in governmental affairs.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Loggins, the Montclair High School representative has been elected ASB president for the 1982-83 school year and also recently was elected president of Region 12, California Association of Student Councils for the coming year.

He became active in student government at Vernon Junior High School, where he was eighth grade class president. In high school, he has served as freshman class vice president, sophomore class president and junior class president. He is active in water polo and swimming and is a goalie on the varsity water polo team.

When time permits, he volunteers for the Ontario Recreation Department working with the developmentally disabled.

Teachers ratify 2-year pact with Central schools

By ANDREA ADELSON
Staff Writer

A two-year contract between the Central School District of Rancho Cucamonga and its teachers was finally ratified last week, ending a year of bitter bargaining.

The accord gives Central's 110 instructors a 9½ percent cost-of-living adjustment previously budgeted for the 1981-82 school year, administrators said.

Members of the Central Teachers Organization gave "conditional" approval to the pact, intending to still challenge some of its provisions before the Public Employment Relations Board.

"It's nice. We'll get our retro check in the mail June 30," CTO President Gale Gordon said.

"Teachers are quite happy about having the money," she said.

While one pact may be finalized, teachers already renewed their request for new salary reopener proposals for the coming year. CTO asked this week that next year's salaries be comparable to surrounding districts, but not to exceed a 15 percent increase, and boosting health and welfare benefits to a maximum of $3,000 annual district contribution per employee, John Tate, chief district bargainer and personnel director, said.

Negotiations will begin in mid-July.

"I'm glad that this long and difficult period in negotiations is finally ended," said district Superintendent Norman Guith. "We hope negotiations (this summer) go smoothly."

Both teachers and the Central governing board had maintained publicly entrenched positions early in the year, after teachers rejected an improved pay offer last December. Teachers finally relented, suggesting the pact be settled by putting seven still unresolved issues into next year's talks. The board declined to accept that offer.

Teachers eventually balloted for the accord last month after dropping two other ticklish issues, asking only for salary and benefit reopeners next year as long as some of its provisions could be challenged.

The board president had earlier expressed reservations over a "conditional" agreement. When CTO clarified their intentions to honor the accord but continue their legal query, the board agreed to the pact.

Besides unfair labor practice charges and counter-charges still pending this month before the public employees board, Gordon said additional filings will be made on provisions adopted in the new contract.

Teachers accepted under protest the inclusion of a previous grievance procedure and a clause allowing the district to take unilateral action in case of emergencies.

Gordon said those will be contested.

Present unfair labor practice charges now pending stem from this year's fractious bargaining debates. Teachers claimed Central bargained improperly. The district's counter-charge alleges a one-day teacher strike last fall violated the labor agreement then in affect.

Age can't wither county fair mascot

A gregarious, youthful looking pig, who like Mickey Mouse never ages, will be back for another year of ballyhooing the Los Angeles County Fair in Pomona, Sept. 9-26.

"Thummer" became the fair's symbol in 1948 after being created by advertising artist Claud McFall. At that time he was dressed in a black suit with a red vest and blue tie and carried a suitcase with Los Angeles County Fair written all over it. An outstretched hoof was in a hitchhiking pose.

He was christened "Porky the Hitchhiking Pig," but the necessity for a new moniker came quickly after a movie cartoon character claimed rights to the name.

That happened in 1951 when 100,000 "Porky" cutouts were passed out to school children and he appeared on Southern California highways as a six-foot cutout thumbing his way to the fair.

A Los Angeles television station came to the fore by conducting a "name the pig contest." First prize was a trip to Mexico.

Out of hundreds of entries came the Thummer name.

Thummer has subsequently changed wearing apparel depending on the era. Now he wears overalls with a polka dot bandana.

Alas, during the 1981 fair Thummer underwent a sex change. Either by design or intent.

It happened when a lady concessionaire at the fair presented General Manager Ralph Hinds with a young pig, which Hinds graciously accepted before a grandstand audience of 10,000.

He declared the pig to be "Thummer, the living symbol of the fair by the powers vested in me as general manager."

Now it develops that Thummer is expecting and due to deliver during the upcoming fair. At the fair, of course.

Home grown vegetables best

What a difference there is to home grown vegetables versus store bought in taste. Harvesting in the backyard puts salad in the salad bowl in a matter of minutes. Eating vegetables that you've grown can improve your appreciation of food — corn will be juicier and more tender, beans snap-pier, tomatoes sweeter.

Just remember not to overcook garden fresh vegetables; leave them slightly crisp for best taste and vitamin content.

Ministry Inc.

Are you a fundamental pastor in need of a church in which to minister, or a fundamental church in need of a pastor? If so, Ministry, Inc. might be able to help.

It is a fundamental, non-denominational, non-profit organization started by the Rev. Mike Blakley of Ontario.

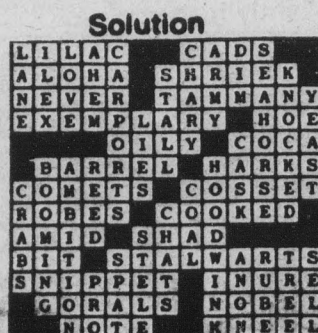

The purpose, he said, "is to get fundamental ministers and fundamental churches together."

Ministry Inc. is interested in working with new churches which may need a part-time or volunteer pastor. "There are many Bible study groups which would like to develop into churches," said Blakley, "but they do not know where to look for a pastor."

"Likewise, there are many men who would like to serve in a part-time or volunteer capacity and help develop a new ministry."

Victory declared in 9-month battle against medfly

The nine-month battle against the Mediterranean fruit fly in Los Angeles County has officially ended with the removal of state and federal quarantine regulations covering a 105-square-mile area of the San Gabriel Valley.

In making the announcement, Paul B. Engler, county agricultural commissioner, said: "Lifting of the quarantine from Los Angeles County and from two of the six counties is a strong indication that federal and state regulatory officials are confident that Medfly is on the ropes in California."

"What is more, the recent decision by Japan to relax its restrictions against all Medfly host material produced in California means that nation shares our confidence."

Supervisor Peter Schabarum joined Engler in making the quarantine-lifting announcement and in witnessing the removal of highway warning signs from the quarantine area boundaries.

He expressed his feeling that the lifting of the quarantine indeed was a major step in ridding California of Medfly and that he was confident this serious pest had been defeated.

Medfly was first discovered in Los Angeles County in the Baldwin Park area Aug. 25, 1981, and aerial spraying begun immediately following declaration by the county Board of Supervisors of a state of local emergency. Before the aerial applications of malathion bait ended in last April, nearly 36 square miles surrounding the initial discovery area were under treatment.

No Medfly has been found in Los Angeles County since Oct. 28.

Memories can turn into cash when written

By CHARLES WEBB
Copley News Service

You'll never forget your first date. No matter how hard you try. But you may be able to cash in on it.

A man recently did just that when he sold a personal experience piece to Modern Maturity entitled, "First Date With A Real Live Girl." He told of the all-too-familiar combination of terror and excitement a boy feels when he asks a girl out for the first time.

There are many things that happen in a person's life that may be of interest to various publications. Your memories, both pleasant and painful, might be able to make you some extra cash. The pay for such pieces typically ranges from $20 to over $300.

You don't have to be rich or famous to have salable memories. Farm Wife News is looking for personal experience articles by rural women. The American Legion magazine is interested in war remembrances. Those with a unique perspective that bring to light little-known facts stand the best chance of being purchased.

Do you recall a religious event in your life that might be of inspiration to teen-agers and young adults? You may be able to sell it to Alive magazine. Another good market for such stories is Guideposts.

If you are a young mother with fresh memories of some problems you have overcome, contact Redbook. You will be handsomely rewarded if they decide to publish your story.

A good place to send any humorous anecdotes you recall is Reader's Digest. They use quite a few in every issue.

Before you send anything to a publication, write to the articles editor. Ask him or her if they would be interested in a manuscript concerning the topic you had in mind. The only exception is if you have written something humorous or are just submitting an anecdote. Then it is usually best to send in the completed piece. Whichever you do, be sure to enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

To get an idea how to put your memories on paper, read past issues of the magazines you plan to submit to. This will clue you in to the type of stories they buy and the way they are written.

Every publication has its own style. What is acceptable for one would not necessarily be right for another. If you expect to sell an article to a magazine, you must conform to its interests and style. Many will provide you with guidelines for the asking.

Walnut Recreation classes offered

The Walnut Recreation Program will begin its summer "Things to do in 82" Monday. Final day to pre-register is Saturday 10 a.m.-2 p.m. at Walnut High School.

This summer the program will offer activities such as aquatics, all-day summer recreation, movies, excursions, adult sports, fine arts, exercise, fitness, health and many other special interest activities. Most of these activities will be centered around two sites in Diamond Bar (Chaparral Intermediate and Maple Hill Elementary) and two sites in Walnut (Walnut High School and Suzanne Intermediate).

Aquatics activities will be at the Walnut High School pool. Swimming instruction will be on a five-day-per-week basis. American Red Cross instructors will teach lessons from infant through beginner and on to junior and senior lifesaving. Instructional swimming is at half hour intervals between 8 a.m. and 1 p.m. daily. Cost for ten half hour lessons is $10. Special classes are $12 per person.

Recreational swimming will be on Tuesday through Saturday from 2:30-3 p.m. and from 3:45-5 p.m. Admission will be 50 cents per person. Punch cards are available for those who will be using the pool 25 times or more.

The summer recreation program will provide children with a full day of supervised activities as well as trips to Magic Mountain, Knotts, Disneyland, Marineland and Universal Studios. Swimming, crafts, dance, music, games, sports, nature study and more will also be offered to participants. Programs will be offered from 9 a.m.-3 p.m. with extended hours available from 7 a.m.-6 p.m. Two sites can be chosen. The Suzanne site will offer optional swimming lessons for an extra $10 and the Chaparral site will offer optional computer instruction for $10. This unique program will be operated by recreation program trained staff. This staff will include a number of certificated teachers. Fees are $60 for the program only (9 a.m.-3 p.m.) and $75 for extended day (any part of 7 a.m.-6 p.m.). Discounts are available. Costs include snacks, drink at lunch, excursions, supplies and leadership.

We will also offer "Movies under the stars." A series of 10 movies will be offered throughout the summer. These films include a number of Academy Award winning Disney feature length films as well as "Superman II" and "The Muppet Movie." This series is made unique by the fact that the showings are outside. The amphitheater at Walnut High and the Chaparral campus are the two locations. Most showings will have a snack bar. For specific movie titles and dates call the recreation office.

Trips to Magic Mountain, L.A. Zoo, Knotts, Disneyland, Marineland and Universal Studios will be offered each Wednesday. Costs include transportation, admission and rides. Also, three teen night excursions will be planned. Magic Mountain and Disneyland will be featured. Teens will leave at 4 p.m. and return at midnight. For more information contact the recreation office.

The summer program will also have activities in music, drama, dance, yoga and movement education, children's crafts, dog obedience, self-hypnosis, pre-natal and post partum exercise, kindergarten readiness, baton lessons, computer classes and much more.

Persons who have questions may call the Recreation Office at 595-1261 or after 4 p.m. call 595-1267. Persons may also get questions answered during the pre-registration at Walnut High School multi-purpose room on Monday from 10 a.m.-2 p.m.

It looks perilous, but scuba diving is a thinking game

By BILL CENTER
Copley News Service

SAN DIEGO — From the surface, the sport looks to be a most physically demanding venture. OK, it looks downright dangerous.

Even the name has an eerie ring — scuba diving: self-contained underwater breathing apparatus. The mind flashes to the rigors of a Navy SEAL team and movie scenes of divers launched through the torpedo tubes of submarines.

"The sport," says Al Gemora of the Diving Locker, a local diving shop, "is sometimes the victim of sharks." Explanation, please: "Well, there are usually more sharks swimming around in a single imagination than in 100 square miles of ocean."

If the truth be known, diving is one of the sports farthest removed from the element of strength. Conditioning is a premium, but strength is not — a fact that might explain its even appeal to both men and women.

One does not have to be an accomplished swimmer to take up scuba diving. If you swim well enough to save yourself, you probably swim well enough to dive.

"Few sports have been misrepresented on television and in the movies as much as diving has," says Gemora. "All you ever see are encounters with sharks and eels, divers flailing away with arms and legs to rescue a buddy in jeopardy."

"The truth is, divers don't swim with their arms. People just don't encounter sharks. And you never see anyone using a BC."

BC stands for buoyancy compensa-

tor. Understand that and you'll know much more about diving and the factor of safety built into this mind sport.

BCs are nothing more than reverse parachutes, an inflatable backpack that when filled with air aids a diver's ascent to the surface. By adjusting the air in the BC, pumped by a valve from the diver's tank, a diver can instantly make adjustments that remove much of the physical effort too often falsely associated with the sport.

Diving is a thinking game. Like all thinking games, it is a skill acquired only through training and study. And about the only accepted way of gaining the necessary knowledge is to attend a diving school.

While there are no laws covering the certification and licensing of divers, diving businesses have adopted one very fine procedure to keep untrained people out of the sport.

One cannot purchase air without a certification card. One cannot get a certification card without taking lessons and passing a series of written tests and in-the-water checkouts. The best way to get lessons is to walk into any diving shop.

Starting diving lessons requires minimal equipment or previous expertise. You must be able to swim well enough to save yourself, and you must be able to read. Lessons range from $85 to $150. Students are expected to supply their own snorkel and mask. The instructors usually provide tanks, air, regulators and other equipment until certification.

Once instruction has been completed, divers are encouraged to join local diving clubs.

MATTRESS FACTORY

Barren region has lush oasis

By DIANA BABB
Copley News Service

The savory smell of fresh-baked pastries lingered. The temptation to try everything in sight proved irresistible. "Si, los quiero estos! Yes, and those, too. Muy bueno! Gracias, gracias!"

The Panaderia Carmen is temptation incarnate, and we were by no means empty-handed when we left. Delicious almond sugar cookies, fresh bread and other sweets provided us with the instant energy needed for the last 75 miles of the drive to San Quintin.

Continuing south through Colonet and the towns of Camal and Colonia Guerrero, we arrived in El Valle de San Quintin — 200 miles south of the Mexican border.

As we neared the gates of "Rancho el Milagro" seed farm, our final destination, Aunt Carol and little cousin Jennifer were filled with the excitement of being back home. My uncle, assistant to the production manager for the seed farm and known to the workers as "Gingo Tomas," was there to greet us.

The ranch, whose name translates "Ranch of a Miracle" — having flourished from barren surroundings — produces seeds for everything from cantaloupes to geraniums. With 15 others, it is owned and operated by Petoseed, Inc. of Satacoy, Calif.

El Valle de San Quintin, a farming community where tomatoes and peanuts are the principal crops, is still recovering from flood damage caused by the heavy rains of two and three years ago. Telephone lines are just now being put up with the hopes of fully restored communications in about a year.

Roads in the valley are primitive. Bridges are being rebuilt and other than the main highway there is only one paved road — a shady tunnel of tamarack trees leading up to the El Presidente Hotel.

Most tourists stay in the El Presidente which has a formal dining room, game room and tennis court. Although its pool was destroyed by the floods, an attractive cactus garden and wading pond stands in its place.

School budget projections an 'educated guess'

Two Rancho Cucamonga School Districts began budget talks last week and both feel their projections amount to "an educated guess."

Etiwanda and Cucamonga elementary school district officials are looking to Sacramento for some kind of signal as to what will be allocated to schools in 1982-83.

Etiwanda School District trustees met Thursday night and approved a $1.78 million tentative budget.

"We still don't know what the state is going to do for us," said board President Jerry Bredlau. "We cannot adopt a final budget until we know what we will receive."

Bredlau said the projections contained within the tentative budget will probably be fairly accurate when the final budget figures are in.

"It (a tentative budget) means that you have made an educated guess of the money you'll have coming in and what you're going to do with it."

Last year's budget amounted to $1.65 million for the district.

Cucamonga School District trustees held a workshop session Thursday afternoon to discuss a $2.8 million budget proposal for next year.

The budget reflects a decrease from the $2.9 million expenditure level in 1981-82, according to Superintendent Roberto Velasquez.

He said the board will have to hack about $400,000 from projected expenditures to meet the income level.

Board members reduced that deficit by $33,000 Thursday and were scheduled to meet again today to make further cuts.

Velasquez said he does not expect layoffs and that cuts will be made in supply and maintenance budgets.

"Unfortunately we have some heavy maintenance needs and that's the area we will have to cut," he said.

Cucamonga teachers OK agency shop clause

Teachers in the Cucamonga School District approved an agency shop clause in their contract Tuesday and the document went on to win approval from the district's school board.

The district becomes the first in the area to have an agency shop arrangement with its teachers.
